

iConnectivity to Offer Sneak Preview of New Line of MIDI Interfaces

Las Vegas, NV, CES, LVCC North Hall Booth 5032, January 7, 2013 – iConnectivity, developer of innovative interfaces for musicians, announced that they would be offering a sneak preview of their upcoming full line of MIDI interfaces at the CES show in Las Vegas, NV.

The new MIDI interface line will build upon patented technology found in the current iConnectMIDI such as; hybrid compatibility, multi-host technology, and MIDI matrix mixing, as well as introducing several new innovations.

Full product information will be released prior to the Winter NAMM Show later this month. CES attendees are invited to drop by the booth (LVCC North Hall, #5032) for an early preview of iConnectivity's new line of products.
